The State Agriculture's Department said on Wednesday that it expected the number of new swine fever cases on the island this year to reach more than 60. According to the farmers, there will be seven countries with new outbreaks this year and the main problem is the shortage of funds for the treatment of swine fever. The US department also urged farmers to find a rapid test for the disease so they can carry out early mass culling of infected pigs in the affected areas. The herd is being tightened in Denmark, Germany, Poland, Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania and Sweden. A special group of swine fever experts from the EU and the US will hold a meeting in Germany later this month to assess the situation on the ground and coordinate the response to the outbreak. The EU will also assign €3.5m to help farmers maintain a sufficient herd, and to fund surveys to find the disease's origin. Earlier on Wednesday, a 68-year-old volunteer was bitten by a snake and died in Germany, an EU official said. Anna-Brigitte Sels, a spokeswoman for the EU's Animal and Plant Health Agency, said the case in Germany was the first since the discovery of swine fever in Europe, and the source of the infection was still unknown. She said swine fever was a condition that does not usually kill humans. "However, if the patient does not receive good medical treatment, they could die," she said.

Osteocalcin-electrochemically reversible binding for selective detection of prostate-specific antigen and carcinoembryonic antigen in serum. An electrochemical biosensor based on the biorecognition between osteocalcin (OC) and tumor markers prostate-specific antigen (PSA) and carcinoembryonic antigen (CEA) was prepared. We achieved an OC-reversible antibody (OC-Ab) via the synthesis of concanavalin A (ConA)-immobilized
